Synopsis

2014 Forest of Reading, White Pine Award • Winner, Nonfiction The true story of how a young Québécois nun ended up a prisoner of war in Buchenwald and how her daughter discovered her secrets. In this true story, Armande Martel, a young nun from Quebec, is arrested by the Germans in 1940 during a stay at her religious order's mother house in Brittany. She spends the war years in a German concentration camp. After her return to Canada, she leaves the Church, finds the love of her life in Montreal, and adopts Lise Dion. Growing up, Lise is familiar with only a few facts of her mother's past. It's when she clears her mother's small apartment after her death that Lise Dion discovers the key to the blue trunk, which was always locked. This key unlocks the mystery of Armande's early life, and Lise decides to write The Secret of the Blue Trunk.

Worried, she phoned the superintendent of her building and asked him if he would mind going to her apartment and checking on her. The superintendent was more than happy to do that for her and said he'd call her back in fifteen minutes. Half an hour later, Lise still hadn't heard back from him and she was worried sick that something was very wrong. Finally, after forty minutes he called her back and told her to come to her mother's apartment right away. He wouldn't tell her over the phone why. When, Lise drove up in front of her mother's apartment building she saw police and paramedics. She found out her mother had been dead for two days. She had died from a pulmonary embolism and had lost consciousness immediately so hadn't suffered which was a relief for, Lise.
